FOREWORD

Welcome Frosh! Don your dinks and come forward into the world of cramming and exams, football games, fraternity parties, midnight oil, mystery meat—MARYLAND. You'll need to know countless things . . . Convocations —what? . . . laundry—where? . . . SGA, SLC, AWS, ML—who? . . . Diamondback—when? . . . Dean's Slips—why? Hence, we give you the "M" Book, the Freshman bible. We have tried to answer within these pages all the questions that puzzled us when, like you, we innocently wandered into our Freshman year. Doing this we have taken our mythical freshman couple, Tess and Tex Tudo on a whirlwind tour of their years at Maryland—from Orientation to Graduation—giving them the facts and figures of college life. The emphasis is on the "how" "who" and "why" to "do it yourself." Take our advice to Tex and Tess seriously—don't hesitate to go to that club meeting, call the counseling center, see your dean—they are all waiting to help you but yours is the first move. So get moving! Come along with Tess and Tex—Live, Learn, and have a wonderful time!

• FRESHMAN ORIENTATION

Freshman Orientation! Just what does this mean to you as a new student at the University of Maryland?

Let us tell you.

The friendships and the enjoyment which you will find at Maryland University will be unequaled by anything you have ever done. During your first few days here, you will be faced with many problems. Helping you to solve these problems, to make friends quickly, and to become familiar with college life and the University is the purpose of Freshman Orientation Week.

It is the testimony of many old students from all colleges and universities that this is the most important week of the year so far as the new students are concerned. With this new program that the Freshman Orientation Board has prepared this year, it should be of added value.

The following are the Freshman Customs as established by the Freshman Orientation Board:

I. All first semester freshmen shall be required to participate in freshman customs with the following exceptions:

   A. All freshmen of 21 years of age or above.

B. All veterans.

C. All married students.

D. Proof of the above must be presented to the Customs Committee before excuse from customs is allowed.

II. Dress Customs

A. Black and gold dinks must be worn by all freshmen at the times and places listed below:

1. 7:00 A.M. to 6:00 P.M. Monday through Friday except holidays determined by the Freshman Orientation Board Customs Committee.

2. At all home football games.

3. Outside of all buildings.

a. Men will remove dinks when inside buildings.

B. 8" x 5" name cards must be worn by all freshmen at the times and places listed below.

1. 7:00 A.M. through 6:00 P.M., Monday through Friday, except holidays determined by the Customs Committee.

2. At all home football games.

3. Inside and outside all buildings.

4. The card must have the name in 1½" letters (to be legible at ten feet). Hometown and curriculum also must be shown.

C. No high school athletic letters shall be worn at any time.

III. General Regulations

A. Freshmen will be allowed to enter the armory to register ONLY if they are wearing a Freshman Dink and name card.

B. Freshmen shall walk only on sidewalks and roads. Walking on any other area is prohibited except for ROTC events and intramural athletics.

C. Freshmen must know the name and location of the given list of campus buildings.

D. Freshmen must attend all home football games and sit in the section assigned to them.

E. Freshmen must know the name and location of the school mascot.

F. Freshmen must know the name of the Dean of Men and Dean of Women and the President of the University.

G. Freshmen must know all of the songs and cheers listed in the M-Book.

IV. Enforcement

A. Ignorance of the aforementioned rules shall not be considered a valid excuse.

B. The Freshman Customs Committee shall decide the date when customs are to be started and ended.

C. It is understood that individual customs may be lifted at any time by the Customs Committee.

D. Power to interpret these rules is vested in the Freshman Orientation Board

Customs Committee subject to the approval of the Student Government Association.

E. All violations of customs must be reported to the Customs Committee in the form of a written and signed charge.

F. Only members of organizations designated by the Customs Committee (hat men and hat women) shall enforce these rules.

G. Male members of Section "F" above may enforce customs rules on freshmen males only. Female members of Section "F" above may enforce customs rules on freshmen females only.

H. Freshmen shall not be expected to be subjected to hazing. Hazing is defined as any activity not specifically defined in these rules. Freshmen may report any hazing to the Freshman Orientation Board Customs Committee.

I. The Freshman Orientation Board Customs Committee shall be appointed by the Student Government Association for a period of one year.

J. The Freshman Orientation Board Customs Committee shall review violations of customs by individuals or groups and impose enforcement policies on those violators.

During Freshman Orientation Week and shortly thereafter, many colored hats will be seen around campus. If you look closely, you will see insignias on the front of the hats. "What's all this for?" you ask. This, too, is another portion of the program to better orientate the new student concerning the clubs and activities available at Maryland.

Members of representative groups comprising a portion of the student activities at Maryland have been chosen to wear these hats. Any question you might have concerning any organization or any phase of college life can be answered by one of the "hat" people.

Following is a list giving the hat insignia and the organization represented:

ML—Men's League

AWS—Associated Women's Students

PUB—Publications

APO—Alpha Phi Omega

D—Diamond

ALD—Alpha Lambda Delta

MB—Mortar Board

PES—Phi Eta Sigma

IFC—Interfraternity Council

PHC—Panhellenic Council

GSS—Gamma Sigma Sigma

FOB—Daydodgers and Freshman Orientation Board

(megaphone)—Cheerleaders

BAND—Band

WRA—Women's Recreation Association

The Freshman Orientation Board urges each and every Freshman to participate in this Orientation Week's activities. Each of the events in the program have been designed to help you in some way. We know that you will find much enjoyment and gather much valuable information from your first and most important week at the University of Maryland.

• GENERAL INFORMATION

University Seal

Maryland's Great Seal, the oldest of the state seals, was sent to the province of Maryland in 1648 by Lord Baltimore. More than 300 years old, the seal is the only state seal of strictly heraldic character.

The escutcheon bears the Calvert and Crosslands arms quartered. The first and fourth quarters are the Calvert Arms. The second and third quarters are from the Crossland, Baltimore's maternal arms. An earl's coronet and full-faced helmet are surmounted on the quarterings. These indicate Lord Baltimore's rank in America. The Calvert crest rests on the helmet.

The escutcheon is supported on one side by the figure of a farmer, and on the other by that of a fisherman—symbols of each of Lord Baltimore's estates, Maryland and Avalon. Below the figures is the scroll bearing the Calvert motto: "Fatti Maschii Parole Femine," which means "Manly Deeds: Womanly Words." On the border encircling the seal is the legend: "University of Maryland . . . 1807 . . . 1865 . . . 1920."

HISTORY

During my first week of school one of the upperclassmen surprised me when he said that the University began way back in 1807. I found it hard to believe that one-hundred fifty freshman classes before me had felt the same bewilderment I was experiencing.

The first freshman class at the University consisted of only med students in the College of Medicine in Baltimore. The second college to be established was the School of Law. Next came the Schools of Dentistry, Nursing and Pharmacy in Baltimore.

The Agricultural School was the first to be established at College Park, but soon the College Park branch of the University became larger than the original Baltimore branch.

The Maryland Agricultural School was the first agricultural college in the United States. It wasn't until 1920 that the Baltimore and College Park schools merged to form the University of Maryland.

You have probably heard that Maryland's enrollment is approximately 60,000. Well, don't start counting, because you'll find less than one-fifth that many at College Park.

Maryland has students enrolled in almost every part of the world through the College of Special and Continuation Studies. Many students come to Maryland from the University of Maryland at Munich and other European and Asiatic "Marylands." The Munich students even publish their own paper, The Continental Collegiate; their yearbook is not just plain Terrapin, but Bavarian Terrapin.

TRADITIONS

I don't like to seem sentimental, but I think one of the main things I will miss at Maryland after I graduate is the chiming of the Chapel bells. Every hour on the hour the bells resound, "Maryland, My Maryland," telling us that it's lunch time, time for that date—or that we're late for class!

School spirit is at its peak during football season. Pep rallies are only the beginning of a chain of exciting events. For Homecoming Weekend the dorms and sororities decorate their houses and lawns with massive terrapins and other figures. Just before the Homecoming game the fraternities parade an array of floats, some satirical, others serious.

The Freshman-Sophomore Tug-of-War over Paint Branch Creek offers thrills and laughs for the two classes.

Of course I must not omit my ancestor, "Testudo," the campus mascot. Testudo is a 500-pound bronze replica of the state of Maryland's Diamondback Terrapin, and he sits at the entrance to Byrd Stadium.

You will meet practically your entire Freshman class at the traditional Freshman Mixer in Ritchie Coliseum. Dancing and the selection of Mr. and Miss Typical Freshman makes the evening memorable.

The campus humor magazine, the Old Line, has a great tradition behind its name. During the American Revolution General George Washington said of the Maryland defenders, "The Old Line will hold!"

The most exciting tradition is "tray riding." With the first snow students flock to sleigh-ride down the hill to the mall on dining hall trays—a practice frowned upon by dining hall officials.

The Barber Shop Quartet contest takes us back to the music of the "Gay Nineties," but we are whisked from the late 1890's to the Old South with the opening performance of the Kappa Alpha Minstrel Show, the oldest tradition on our campus.

With the Spring months come even more traditions. The keen competition for first place in the Inter-Fraternity Sing and the anticipation before the winner is announced only adds to the enjoyment of the beautiful choral voices, while hilarious entertainment is added by the satirical skits presented by a few groups.

Naturally, spring brings romantic traditions to Maryland. There is the Wishing Well at Rossborough Inn, where all wishes are guaranteed to come true or your money refunded. And don't forget to visit the Kissing Tunnel. The tradition is that no boy may take his girl under the tunnel without kissing her—Wow!

While football lifts school spirit high in the fall, elections drum up just as much spirit in the spring. The "Old Line" and "Free State" parties vie for student government and class offices, with electioneering and campaigns similar to those of national elections.

The tradition of May Day was started over 20 years ago by our Dean of Women, Adele Stamp. The May Day festival is highlighted by the crowning of the May Queen and the tapping of outstanding junior women by Mortar Board. A pageant is then presented to entertain the Queen.

I never realized what a fascinating game lacrosse is until I watched the annual lacrosse game between Maryland and Johns Hopkins, our arch rival.

Maryland traditions will not only follow us throughout our college life, but they will remain among our treasured memories years after graduation.

Academic Regulations

Everyone goes to college for a different reason. I'm sure if you took a poll of your class you would find quite a variety of reasons. The main reason we all go to college is to get an education. To do this you must follow the academic regulations.

One term you will hear as soon as you arrive on campus is "credit" or "semester hour." A credit hour is the equivalent of a subject pursued one period a week for one semester. Two or three periods of laboratory or field work equal one lecture period. The normal student load is 15 to 19 credits. This can be changed only with permission from the Dean of your college.

"Dean slips" is another term you will hear uttered many times. All students doing work below the C level after the first six weeks of school receive slips from the Dean. The Dean tries in an appropriate manner to aid the student to improve in the courses he is finding difficult.

A two hour examination is held at the end of each semester for each course taken. Two or three hour exams are usually given during the semester depending on the instructor. If a student misses an exam and has a legal excuse, he will be allowed to take a make-up upon the payment of $1.00 to the cashier.

Classes last 50 minutes and the chiming of the chapel bells signifies the hour and the beginning of another class.

Junior standing is what everyone strives for. To obtain it you must have an average grade of C or 2.0 in the courses you have taken and have completed 56 semester hours of academic work. A general C or 2.0 average is also required for graduation. This average will be computed on the courses required for each individual's curriculum. The over-all average will be used as a basis for honors.

Only one-fifth of the graduating class in each college receives honors for excellence in scholarship. The top half of this group receives first honors and the lower half receives second honors. 60 semester hours or two years must be completed at the University to obtain these honors.

In May of this year the Board of Regents passed a new set of regulations governing academic probation and dismissal. The new regs are presented here in short form.

A student will be dismissed if he fails 50 per cent or more of his academic work in a semester. An incomplete will not count against a student.

All students must maintain at least a 1.5 average for a year's work or he will be placed on academic probation.

A student will also be placed on academic probation if he fails more than 35 per cent of his academic work in any one semester.

Once a student is placed on academic probation (or is re-instated after dismissal) he must make during the probation semester an academic average of 1.75 (and must not fail more than 35 per cent of his work) or he will be dismissed. A special provision is made for the second-semester freshman.

A student on a normal schedule is expected to make junior standing at the end of his fourth semester. If he fails to make junior standing at the fourth semester, he will be allowed one semester of grace. If he fails to make junior standing at the end of the fifth semester, he will be placed on academic probation and if he does not make junior standing at the end of the probation semester he will be dismissed.

Basic ROTC, required health, and required physical education will not be included in computing averages for probation or dismissal. This means that a student may fail all of his ROTC credits and still not be placed on probation.

A course may be repeated only once. When a course is repeated, both the original grade and the new grade will be posted on the student's record and used in computing his average for probation and dismissal only.

A student will normally not be permitted to drop a course after the third week of classes. First-semester freshmen will be allowed up to eight weeks to drop a course.

Students on trial admissions are permitted a maximum of four semesters in which to earn regular status.

In changing colleges a student with unsatisfactory records will be placed under strict control ("intermediate registration") and must make himself eligible for the new college in one or, at the most, two semesters.

Appeals may be made to the Petition Board if the circumstances warrant an appeal.

These regulations will be put into effect in stages beginning with the summer session of 1957. Students reinstated for summer school or the fall semester (1957) or thereafter will be placed under the new 1.75 probation rule.

The first check to determine whether a student has made the minimum 1.5 average will be made during the summer of 1958.

Probation for students who do not make junior standing on time will be first imposed at the end of the spring semester (1958).

A student now on trial admission shall be given until the end of the spring semester (1958) to comply with the provisions of this rule.

Probationary and dismissal actions in accordance with the other provisions of the new regulations will first be imposed at the end of the fall semester of the academic year 1957-1958.

The regulation governing dropping of courses will first apply at the beginning of the fall semester (1957).

If a student has registered at Maryland for a course one or more times before June 9, 1957, then as far as these regulations are concerned, he will be charged with only one registration in the course up to June, 1957, and only the latest grade earned in the course will count. This means that he will have the chance to repeat the course one more time. The last grade before summer school in 1957 and all subsequent grades in the course will be counted in computing the over-all average.

Activities Fee

The activities fee, which is paid by all students, is for the following activities which are under the Student Government Association: Publications, Class Dues, University Theater, Dances, Intercollegiate Sporting Events, and other general S.G.A. expenses.

During registration the student, in return for this fee, receives his activities book. Upon presentation of his I.D. card and the designated ticket from this book he will be admitted to all campus activities and will be able to obtain student publications.

Board

Perhaps the foremost question which passes through the minds of all new students is . . . "Where will I eat?" Those living "on the hill" are required to eat in the Dining Hall, and are issued Dining Hall cards at registration. All other students must make their own arrangements. For Daydodgers, there is the cafeteria located on the lower level of the Dining Hall and the Terp Inn downstairs in the Student Union Building. There are several eating establishments in College Park of fair caliber and price range, and some Greek-letter houses take in boarders. Next to the Rossborough Inn on the boulevard is the University Dairy serving ice cream and other dairy products every day except Sunday.

Books and Supplies

Textbooks, school supplies, and class materials as well as jewelry, stationery and novelty items are available at the Student Supply Store on the first floor of the Student Union. The Maryland Book Exchange, opposite the South Gate, also handles books and supplies for all student needs. The APO Book Store will be located on the first floor of the Journalism Building, and will be selling used books on a non-profit basis. Since lines are long after classes begin, it is recommended that students buy required books during registration.

Communications

The Campus Post Office, which is located in the basement of the Student Union Building, receives, dispatches, and delivers U.S. Mail including parcel post packages. Postage stamps may also be purchased here. But for all other postal services the student must go to the U.S. Post Office in College Park. You will be assigned a Post Office Box, also located in the Student Union basement, which you will share with one or more people. The Campus Post Office provides a medium through which the administration and campus organizations may communication with you: therefore, please check your boxes daily, if possible.

Campus phones can be used for campus calls before 4 p.m. Pay station telephones are available in the dorm, Administration Building, Library, Student Union, and Dairy. The Student Directory includes campus and local phone numbers of all students as well as all Administration extensions.

Telegrams may be sent from the telephone exchange in the east end of the Education Building. Incoming telegrams are phoned or delivered to the residences.

Infirmary

All undergraduate students may receive dispensary service and medical advice at the Infirmary during office hours, established by the physician in charge. A registered nurse is on duty at all hours in the Infirmary for your care. Therefore, please report illnesses during doctors office hours unless the case is an emergency. If you are living in one of the fraternity or sorority houses, dorms, or "off campus" houses and are too ill to go to the Infirmary, notify your housemother, proctor, or householder who in turn will notify the Infirmary.

Laundry

The University does not provide laundry service; each student is responsible for his or her own laundry. There are several reliable laundry concerns in College Park, or if a student prefers he may take his laundry home. Students may, if they wish, do their own laundry, not including bed linen, in the laundry room in each dormitory.

Lost and Found

Finders keepers doesn't quite hold true at the University of Maryland. Each student is asked to turn in any found articles to the

Through the North Gate

Campus Police Headquarters, located at the station house at the North Gate or the Dean of nearest department.

Traffic and Parking

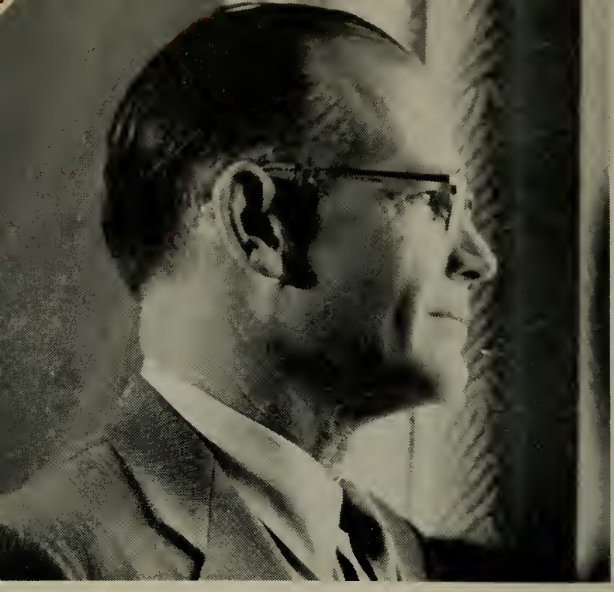
Campus Traffic is governed by the regulations set forth by the Campus Police Force, assisted in enforcement of these rules by members of the State Police Force. Cars on campus are restricted to designated parking areas, and students will be penalized if found abusing or violating these privileges. The parking lot spaces are allotted when you have your car registered.

Traffic tickets are paid on the second floor of the Service Building and anyone wanting to appeal their ticket may appear before the Traffic Appeals Board.

Publications

Students are kept informed of campus activities through the student paper, the Diamondback, which is published four times a week and is distributed from stands in all the major buildings. The Old Line, Maryland's humor magazine, is delivered to the dorms, fraternity and sorority houses, and most of the buildings on campus. Distribution of the yearbook, Terrapin, will be announced in May and all students must present their I.D. cards in order to receive one.

• ADMINISTRATION



Who's the man who runs the whole show?-
Dr. Wilson H. Elkins.

Dr. Elkins, a Phi Beta Kappa and thre letter man, was born in Medina, Texas, i 1908. He attended the University of Texa where he received B.A. and M.A. degrees. I
1933 he was awarded a Rhodes Scholarship t
Oxford University, where he attained Bachelo of Literature and Doctor of Philosophy degree in 1936. In 1938 he became president of Sa
Angelo Junior College and in 1949 he went t
Texas Western to hold the same position. H was inaugurated as president of the Universit of Maryland on October 29, 1954.

The President's Office

As president of the University, Dr. Elkins has many jobs and many bosses. He is directly responsible to the Governor of the state and to the Board of Regents. He must control money in the millions, students in the tens-of-thousands, and faculty and staff in the tens-of-hundreds.

Some of the top men around Dr. Elkins are: Albin O. Kuhn, Assistant to the President, who handles many of the details that pass through the president's office; Alvin Cormeny, Special Assistant to the President, who is in charge of development and endowment programs for student welfare and special educational projects.

As the Dean of the Faculty, Dr. Lee R. Hornbake coordinates academic programs and procedures for the University; Edgar F. Long, Dean of Students, oversees remedial work for all students on academic trial, and Norma Azlein, Registrar, takes care of grade records and processes and signs all diplomas.

Approving all new students and organizing registration procedures is the Director of Admissions, G. Watson Algire; Ronald Bamford is Dean of the Graduate School.

Robert J. McCartney is in charge of University publications and publicity. His title is University Relations Director. Student Health Services Director Harry A. Bishop supervises the infirmary and oversees health control measures in campus residences.

The above is only a partial list of the people who assist Dr. Elkins. One thing to keep in mind is that, by appointment, you can see Dr. Elkins at any time. He and his staff are here to help you on your way through college.

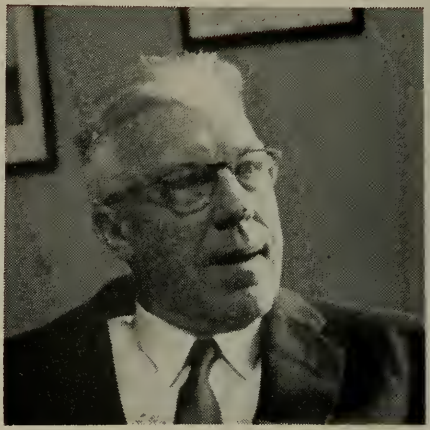
Adele Stamp—Dean of Women

At Dean Stamp's office all campus social functions are registered and all women's housing approved.

Associate Dean M. Margaret Jameson supervises women's residences. Job placement and counseling are Assistant Dean Marian Johnson's responsibilities. Julia Billings serves as adviser to SGA, AWS, and the Campus Judicial Board, while Eileen McCormick handles registration of all social engagements and serves as adviser to the Panhellenic Council.

Dean Stamp, or any of the assistant deans, can be reached at any time of day or night. DON'T HESITATE to ask their help if you have a problem.



Geary Eppley—Dean of Men

Dean of Men Geary Eppley, who also doubles as director of student welfare, ranks among the campus' hardest men to reach on the phone. He's always at a committee meeting somewhere.

Handling most of the residence problems is Associate Dean Bob James, who also advises the Interfraternity Council. Assistant Dean Doyle Royal supervises traffic appeals, ID cards and advises Freshman Orientation. Fred DeMarr is concerned with student organization management and Chapel functions, and Lewis M. Knebel directs the University's Placement Service.

Student Life Committee

Although Maryland students have many powers and privileges of self-government, none of these is absolute. Any decision made by the SGA Executive Council is subject to approval by the Faculty Committee on Student Life, or the SLC as you will often see it identified.

This committee makes recommendations to the SGA which the student group considers but is under no obligation to accept. In addition to functioning as a link between the student body and the Administration and advising the Student Government Association, the duty of approving every club, honorary, or Greek letter organization to be established on the campus falls to the Student Life Committee.

Student Life, which could aptly be described as the "watchdog of student affairs" maintains constant surveillance on student activities, advises their affairs, and suggests improvement for unsatisfactory conditions which may develop. The committee also manages University social affairs and sanctions various traditional week-ends, dances and convocations.

Appointed by the President of the University, the committee is composed of nine members of the faculty, five representatives of the Administration, and three students.

• STUDENT GOVERNMENT

Student Government Association

As a student it is vitally important that you understand and participate in the University's organization for student self-government. The Student Government Association, which encompasses governing bodies such as Class Governments, the Men's League and Associated Women Students, is headed by a policy making 17-member executive council whose job it is to coordinate subordinate organizations and appropriate student funds.

Sitting on this council, in addition to the administrative officers, the President, Vice-President, Secretary and Treasurer, are representatives of various special interest groups, such as the Class Presidents, and the President of AWS and Men's League. An Independent Men's and an Independent Women's Representative, a Fraternity Representative and a Sorority Representative also vote on the council for their portion of the Student body. Three Delegates-at-Large are elected to the Council to voice the opinion of the Student body as a unit.

In addition to deciding student policy, and appropriating funds from the Student Activities fees to various student groups, the SGA Council appoints committees to supervise student activities such as Homecoming, Elections, and Cultural programs. Committees are also appointed to conduct investigations of particular situations or implement decisions of the group.

The SGA Executive Council meets each Tuesday evening in the Student Union Building. All regular meetings are open and it is considered a good idea for you to drop by once in a while, especially if you are interested in promoting the interests of student government.

Any questions, suggestions, or complaints will be taken care of in an informal manner by one of the council officers on duty in the SGA office also located in the Student Union Building. Should you have a problem for the entire council to discuss you are perfectly free to attend any meeting and bring it up yourself, however, any action in the form of a motion must originate on the council. A motion is very easily arranged by just dropping by the office and explaining your idea to a Council member.

Committees

If you're interested in working on one of the SGA's countless committees (and they hope you are) the SGA office is the place to submit your application. Application blanks are available in that office and sometimes in the Dean of Women's or Dean of Men's offices.

Although applications may be made at almost any time throughout the year certain deadlines are almost always imposed. Reminder that applications are being accepted for a particular committee and notification of the deadline usually appear in the Diamondback for several weeks before the committee is finally selected.

SGA committees under the constitution are Ways and Means, headed by the SGA Treasurer; Elections, headed by the Men's League President; Organization and Procedure, chairmanned by the Vice-President; and special committees like Student Welfare, Social Affairs, Campus Improvement, Student Activities, Constitution, Campus Chest, Freshman Orientation, Homecoming, Dad's Day, Student Union, Culture, Public Relations, Traffic Appeals, Job Placement, and Who's Who. The SGA prexy appoints chairmen for the special committees with the approval of the Council.

Class activity chairmanships are appointed by the respective class executive councils, however, the method of application is generally the same. Homecoming and Dad's Day are two major Fall projects which will recruit workers shortly after classes begin.

Sub-committee chairmanships and committee members in most instances are chosen by the chairman of the activity.

STUDENT GOVERNMENT ASSOCIATION

Freshmen Elections

Frosh politicians will get their chance for glory early in October when the SGA Elections Board calls Open Season on the offices of:

President

Vice-President

Treasurer

Sergeant-at-Arms

Historian

AWS Representative

Men's League Representative

Any freshman may be nominated for office by securing the signatures of 50 of his classmates on a petition for office, and presenting this list of backers to the Elections Board before the announced deadline.

In the event more than two candidates announce their intention to run for a single office primary elections are held to narrow the field.

Campaigning, both pre-primary and pre-election is strictly up to the individual as long as he abides by the Election Rules which will be made public by the Elections Board. As a rule, anything short of sound-trucks during class hours or painting on the streets goes. Violations of the rules are reported to the Elections Board and punitive action is taken which may even mean disqualification of a candidate.

Actual voting for class officers usually takes place on a Wednesday after one or two weeks of hectic electioneering. Only Freshmen are allowed to vote and identification in the form of an ID card must be presented.

AWS

AWS, this year under the leadership of Alice Love, is the official campus governing body for women students. Along with its other activities this group formulates and administers the standards of conduct and campus rules and is responsible for maintaining personal and group standards of behavior.

AWS also sponsors various social activities for individual dorms or the entire campus, awards a scholarship cup, and assists the Women's Recreational Association with their intramural program.

Campus-dwellers and Daydodgers alike are automatically members of AWS by virtue of their enrollment in the University. Any questions or suggestions pertaining to AWS activities or problems of a woman-to-woman nature may be taken up with members of the AWS executive council who are on duty in the AWS office in the Student Union Building. Applications for membership on AWS committees may also be obtained and submitted in this office.

An Executive Council, made up of the President, Vice-President, Secretary, and Treasurer coordinates the activities of AWS subdivisions: the Residence Council, composed of dormitory and sorority house presidents; the Dormitory Council which is concerned with the problems of dormitory government and Executive Council policies affecting women's dormitories; the Judicial Board, governing board for campus women's regulations; and the Academic Board, responsible for encouraging high standards and stimulating intellectual activity.

Men's League

As a male student at the University you are automatically considered a member of the Men's League, the men's counterpart of AWS. The Men's League serves to assist the Dean of Men in administering University rules and regulations, and assisting the dorm manager in enforcing the code of conduct for the men's dorms. Under their new Constitution. if you violate a dorm rule you are subject to punishment by the Men's League Court.

The League works with the Dean of Men in planning dormitory improvements and additions which will make your stay at the University more comfortable. Each year the Council awards a bronze cup to the outstanding male graduate based on character, achievement, and service to the University.

There are two divisions of the League—the Executive Council and the Dormitory Council.

The Executive Council is composed of the league's officers and elected representatives of each class, Alpha Phi Omega, Interfraternity Council, and Independent Students' Association.

The Dormitory Council serves as a disciplinary board for offenders in the dormitory and works to encourage dormitory activity through the proctors.

The proctors are students who maintain order and discipline in the dormitories and serve as advisors and counsellors to the students. They are responsible for enforcing quiet hours, seeing that rooms are kept clean, and that health standards are maintained.

• HONORARIES

On the next few pages you will find listed the honoraries that have chapters here at Maryland. In general, membership in an honorary is gained by maintaining a high scholastic standing and an active interest in the field or fields covered by the honorary.

To become a member of an honorary you must first be recognized by its members as an outstanding student. If you meet the qualifications of the honorary you will be "tapped" for membership. The tapping may be formal, as in the case of ODK's Calvert Cotillion, or it may take place at one of the group's regular meetings.

Membership in an honorary is something any student can be proud of for it shows that he has done more than just attend the University. Each new member is given a key which is worn on a key chain or a bracelet.

• RELIGION

Religious Clubs are an integral part of the social activity of campus life. The clubs, most of which meet Wednesday nights, are for students and offer a variety of activities. Solely responsible for them are the students who have made their respective religious organizations an important part of their campus life while at Maryland.

Each religion represented on campus has an office in the chapel. Many of the faiths have chaplains and advisors on campus every day. Guidance from these counselors can be easily arranged by just dropping in to see the religious counselor who suits you.

Student Religious Council

The Student Religious Council is the interfaith group on campus. The group serves to co-ordinate the activities of the various religious groups. The council is composed of representatives from each of the clubs.

The Council's president, John Allen, presides over weekly meetings in the chapel. The primary purpose of the council is to stress the importance of religion in the college student's life.

As its main project, the Council sponsors Fireside chats. Two of these informal talks by a minister, priest, or rabbi are held during the school year. Each dorm, sorority, and fraternity is assisted by the council in selecting a speaker and in obtaining him. In fact, Charlie Peterson, vice-president of the council, has been working on the fireside chat program for the fall all summer. It has been a welcomed event in the past by all students. These chats lead to an understanding of your classmates' religion.

Baptist Student Union

The Baptist students can enjoy a year-round program. The Baptist Student Union not only has a fall and spring program, but also summer activities. A pre-school retreat is sponsored by the club two weeks before school opens. In fact, if you are a Baptist you probably have already received a letter from the club explaining the summer program.

Conventions are held throughout the year for Baptist college students in the area schools, east coast colleges, and even on an international basis. The group has regular weekly meetings on Wednesday night in the Chapel at 7:30. If you are interested in learning more of the many activities of the club, call Carol Savage or Tom King, program director. Both members live on campus. Tom may be reached at Allegany Hall.

- PUBLICATIONS

Committee on Student Publications and Communications

The Faculty Senate Committee on Student Publications and Communications provides faculty-student cooperation in regard to all publications and communications and their particular problems. Operating with an equal student-faculty membership, the committee consists of 13 members: six students, six faculty, and a chairman who votes only in the event of a tie.

Dr. John H. Frederick, head of the Business Organizations Department will preside as chairman of the committee for the third consecutive year. Student members include the editors of the Diamondback, Terrapin and Old Line, WMUC's station director, one student from the professional schools in Baltimore, and the SGA president or his representative. The six faculty members include five representatives from the College Park campus and one from the Baltimore professional schools.

During the latter part of the spring semester, the committee interviews and appoints the editor, managing editor, and business manager for the four publications for the following year. All students in a publications editorial position must have a scholastic overall average of 2.0, and a minimum 2.0 average in the semester of their appointment.

At its regular monthly meetings last year the committee tackled such matters of policy as the role of a faculty advisor to a publication, revisions in the publications' style and content, and a code of operations for the radio station.

Diamondback

Editor ..... David Heinly
Executive Editor ..... Dinah Brown
Business Manager ..... Frank Ratka

The Diamondback is the newspaper for Maryland's student body. Edited, written, and financed by students, this tabloid affords many opportunities for would-be reporters, feature writers, artists, photographers, and those with a business mind, to gain experience in the field of newspaper production.

Reporting and interpreting campus news four days a week is the job of the all-student staff. Openings for interested undergraduates are available in all departments.

As a guide to campus life the Diamondback has all the features of a metropolitan newspaper. News bulletins, sport pages, columns, feature stories, editorials, and comic strips represent only a fraction of the material printed in your Diamondback.

Distribution points are conveniently located throughout the campus.

Old Line

Editor ..... Margaret Gates
Managing Editor ..... Tina Fragale
Business Manager ..... Roger Mitchell

Published six times during the school year, the Old Line magazine presents the best in campus creative writing and college humor, as well as features on off-beat personalities and activities.

The Old Line office is housed on the second floor of the Journalism Building and the publication's $5500 budget is financed by the Student Government Association.

Membership on the staff is open to all students in both the editorial and the business departments of Old Line. Contributions are always welcomed.

Terrapin

Editor ..... John Allen
Managing Editor ..... Phyllis Turner
Business Manager ..... George Weinkam

Maryland's social, academic, athletic, religious, and political life is recapitulated as a pictorial review of the year's activities in the student yearbook, the Terrapin.

Issued in May, the yearbook requires a year of diligent work. Last year's 380 page yearbook was the largest and most expensive—over $38,000—in Maryland history. Color sections have highlighted the last two editions of the Terrapin.

Traditionally, the first copy of the annual is presented to the May Queen as a part of the May Day ceremonies. The yearbook is distributed to the student body from the Journalism Building later in the month.

Staff membership is open to all students. Those interested in positions as feature writers, photographers, business assistants, typists, and copy readers, should apply to the editor.

M-Book

Co-editors .....Carole Bowie, John Allen
Managing Editor .....Patricia Duvall
Business Manager .....Joseph Carr

M Book, the freshman handbook, is published every summer for incoming freshmen and is distributed during registration.

As a handbook for neophyte Maryland scholars, the M Book is a useful reference publication, containing as much information about the University as it is possible to put together in one small handy volume.

The editor, managing editor, and business manager are appointed by the Publications

Board in the spring. The remainder of the staff is appointed by the editor from applications submitted by interested individuals.

Financed by the Student Government Association, the M Book is provided to new freshmen free of charge. Students interested in purchasing a copy may do so at the Student Book Store in the Student Union.

WMUC

Station Director .....Tom Willoughby
Program Director .....Jack Bowden
Business Director .....Patrick Gates
Director of Public Relations—
George Darlington

WMUC, the radio voice of the University of Maryland, offers all students interested in radio a chance to announce, write scripts, and engage in the engineering, business and research aspects of the field.

In the fall of 1955, WMUC joined forces with WAMU, the campus radio station at American University, to form the Capitol Network of the Intercollegiate Broadcasting Company. As a member station of IBC, WMUC presents all phases of radio work to interested students. Besides broadcasting all campus events, WMUC is the recipient of programs from other colleges within the Capitol Network.

Operating on a 7-day-a-week schedule the radio station features an all-day show on Saturday entitled "Metronome." Live remotes during the year include the Interfraternity Sing, Harmony Hall, Handel's "Messiah," and Campus election returns.

Pi Delta Epsilon Banquet

Pi Delta Epsilon, the National Journalism Honorary, highlights the end of each year with the Publications Banquet. The banquet, which is open to everyone, follows the initiation ceremonies for the spring Pi Delt tappees.

Immediately following the banquet is the annual presentation of awards and keys, giving recognition to the outstanding students in the various publications for the year. The Editors of the respective publications recognize the members of their staffs who have rendered outstanding service during the year. At this time, each Editor also introduces his successor.

The E. A. Coblentz Memorial Cup, given to the freshman who has done outstanding work during his first year in publications, is presented in honor of a former Diamondback business manager killed in Korea.

The senior who has contributed the most to publications during his four years is awarded the William H. Hottel award by Sigma Delta Chi, which honors a former publications advisor.

National Pi Delta Epsilon medals of merit are awarded to the outstanding man and woman in journalism at the University.

Entertainment for the banquet is provided by skits produced by the staff of each publication. Sometimes outside entertainment is invited to perform for the affair. Usually well-known speakers from the professional publications world are present to speak for the banquet.

• CULTURE

College and books have been synonymous since the very beginning of time, but we soon found out that it's impossible to stare at a written page Monday through Sunday and not take time out for a little fun. Why, without parties and that long awaited Saturday night date, there would be no color in your week. But naturally these fun fests and movie dates will become "old stuff" to you and you will no doubt find yourself, as we did, scanning the Diamondback for news of something different to add to your list of things to see and do. Actually you'll have little trouble, as many campus organizations, as well as outside entertainers, give of their talents in the course of the year.

Probably the first questions that you will have will be where, when, and how much. To be perfectly honest, they were our first ones, too.

One very big must to start your college career off with a bang is to secure your tickets to the National Symphony concerts sponsored by the Student Government. Past years have brought such notables as Sir Thomas Beecham, Eddie Condon's Jazz Group in jazz vs. classics contest, Duke Ellington, Earl Wilde, and Seymour Lipkin.

Four times during the year, usually twice in the fall semester and twice again in the spring semester, Ritchie Coliseum is transformed into a concert hall. All four concerts fall on Thursday which we found breaks up the week nicely. But we've left out the best part. As a student you get all four tickets for only three dollars and all you have to do to obtain them is walk in Albrecht's or the Record Center in College Park, or the Student Union. Don't overlook these concerts; you'll really enjoy them.

As the fall progresses you'll find that Ritchie Coliseum is the scene of many shows you'll not want to miss. Phi Kappa Tau Fraternity's Harmony Hall features Barber Shop quartets singing in competition. This you'll find free and on a week night, making it almost a necessity.

After you've been on campus for about two hours, you will undoubtedly have heard the phrase UT ten or more times.

Maryland's University Theater productions are probably the most popular of all shows on campus. A variety of productions from musicals to Shakespeare are specialties of this group. Each play has a week's run, enabling just about everyone to see it.

Reserved seats are obtained by merely going to the UT box office in the basement of Skinner Building and exchanging a ticket from your activity book for another ticket. We've seen such standouts as "Hamlet," "Gentlemen Prefer Blondes." "Volpone," and "The Crucible."

The next things you should definitely look into are the fall and spring straight musical productions. We like band music and you must admit, or at least you will, that Maryland's Big Red and White Band is certainly one of the very best.

If you are the least bit musically minded you'll enjoy the concerts given by the band and appreciate the work that they put into them. Once again Ritchie Coliseum is the scene and again the admittance is free.

The longer you're here you'll see more and more that we're a rather musical campus. Choral works take the spotlight, particularly at Christmas and Easter when the Chapel Choir gives the appropriate portion of Handel's "Messiah" for the holidays. These performances usually take place in Memorial Chapel on the Sunday before classes adjourn. Other programs by this group have included "St. Mathew's Passion" by Bach and the "Creation" by Haydn.

Along the same line are the Men's Glee Club and Women's Chorus productions. The annual "Ceremony of Carols" by the Women's Chorus, following the AWS Christmas pageant, adds a seasonal glow to the campus.

Naturally, the men also hold a place of esteem as a vocal group. The University's Men's Glee Club offers its voices in harmony both in the fall and spring.

Tickets are not necessary for any of these concerts, as all are free. Most are held in the Chapel, but we found it's always good to check the Diamondback to be sure.

Now if you're intellectually minded or show an interest in world affairs, you'll definitely want to attend some of the Coffee Hours sponsored by the Associated Women Students held in the Student Union on Tuesday or Thursday afternoons. Discussions led by faculty members include world, national, and local topics which are of particular interest to college students. We really enjoyed the ones pertaining to the national elections. Make a note to be in the Student Union and drop in on one of these groups.

Of all of the events held during the year you will find that there is one to which everyone is urging you to go. This is the Convocation or Convocations, depending on how many speakers are available. Classes are called and masses of students swarm to the Armory.

Last year's speakers included Dr. Wilson Elkins, president of the University; and later, on Maryland Day, Senator William Fulbright from Arkansas. The Student Government Cultural Committee, who plans the Symphony Concerts and arranges for all speakers, is attempting to contact some prominent speakers for this year. When a convocation is announced, be sure to join us at the Armory. The time will be well spent.

Every January there comes to campus a minstrel show that is not to be missed by anyone. This annual event, presented by Kappa Alpha Fraternity, is one of the highlights of the school year. The Central Auditorium is usually sold out every night the week the show is running. Just as with a UT production, the tickets are sold at the box office, but this time there is a fee of one dollar. Believe us, this show is worth it.

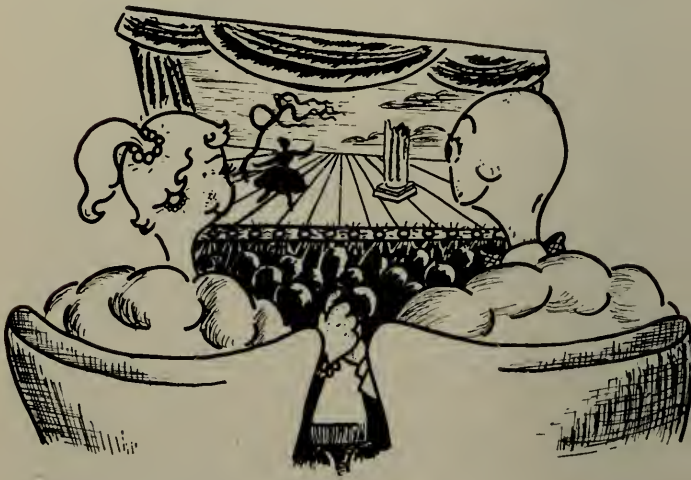
During the year, the art department sponsors several exhibits both in the Arts and Sciences Building and in the Student Union. You will probably be astonished when you see the talent that some Maryland students possess. These exhibits usually run through one week.

If you're athletically inclined. you'll definitely enjoy the famous Gymkana Troup shows. They're always held in the spring semester just when that lag before Easter break begins to show. William P. Cole Field House was last year's setting for the show and ticket books are always the admission.

Along the same line is the Aqualiners' Water Show held in the men's pool in the field house about the same time of year. Tickets for this show are available at the door. You'll not want to miss either of these shows as they provide a really enjoyable bit of entertainment.

But with all of these things to do and see, we still haven't told you everything. Just to mention a few more that we think you shouldn't miss, there are the Interfraternity Sing, sponsored by Delta Delta Delta sorority, and the University Orchestra Concerts.

So you see, we never lack for good entertainment. Of course, it's a little impossible to do everything, but we strongly suggest that you not miss too many—you'll enjoy yourself.



• MILITARY

The AFROTC Program

Because the University of Maryland is a Federal "Land-Grant" institution, ROTC training is required for all male students for two years. As a prerequisite toward graduation from the University all male students must complete these two years of basic military training unless they are veterans of the armed services. Special provisions are made for those not physically qualified.

The Air Force ROTC program is divided into two parts. The freshman and sophomore years are devoted to the Basic Course. The Advanced Course is offered in the Junior and Senior years.

In addition to drill every Tuesday and Thursday morning, cadets have two hours of instruction in classrooms every week. Basic ROTC, or the first two years, affords opportunity for many cadets to participate in flights in Air Force aircraft. Some flights are made to various Air Force bases throughout the country.

The advanced course is offered on a voluntary basis. To qualify for the third and fourth year program, cadets are screened by a governing board. This course is primarily concerned with imparting knowledge and mental skills that will increase an officer's opportunities for greater success in the Air Force. Those men who choose to fulfill their military obligations through the Advanced Program, and a subsequent commission, are granted a draft deferment.

Upon completion of the fourth year of the AFROTC training program, the student will become a second lieutenant in the U. S. Air Force Reserve.

Instructors in the Air Science Department are well qualified Air Force officers specially selected by the USAF for this assignment. Each officer has attended an Academic Instructors course at the Air Force's Air University to prepare for this job. The Air Science curriculum that these officers teach was designed by a committee of top flight college educators and senior Air Force Officers.

Commanding Marvland's AFROTC unit is Colonel Robert E. Kendig, Professor of Air Science. Over 40 regular Air Force personnel, who teach and keep detailed records on each cadet, compose Col. Kendig's staff.

Maryland is one of 10 American universities which has chosen to expand their AFROTC program to the fairer sex. The new women's reserve training program now has four cadettes in its ranks.

Scabbard and Blade

President ..... Richard Watt
Treasurer ..... John Eichler
Faculty Advisor—
Capt. Samuel Hammerman

Scabbard and Blade is a national honorary fraternity for all the military forces. As the highest military honorary on the campus, Scabbard and Blade selects men who possess outstanding qualities in scholarship, leadership, efficiency, loyalty, and fellowship.

Eligibility requirements are a 2.5 overall average and a 3.0 average in Air Science. Members are tapped annually at the Military Ball.

Since its inception here in 1922 the purpose of the group has been to expand and improve activities of the military at the College Park campus.

The society is best known for its annual wreath-laying ceremonies at the tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Arlington National Cemetery. Each year during the Military Day award ceremonies the Coblentz Memorial Cup is given by Scabbard and Blade to the best drilled squadron within the Corps of Cadets.

Arnold Air Society

Commander ..... Richard Reid
Executive Officer ..... William Nesbitt
Operations Officer ..... Howard Turner
Comptroller ..... David Band
Information Services Officer—
Richard Johnston

The Arnold Air Society is an honorary military society whose membership is limited to advanced AFROTC cadets who have demonstrated exceptional character, leadership ability, high scholastic standing, and an interest in furthering the AFROTC program.

It is the organization's purpose to develop leadership in future Air Force Officers and to enhance relations between faculty officers, student officers, and AFROTC cadets.

Activities for the year include co-sponsoring the annual Military Ball with the Angel Flight and awarding the advanced cadet who has contributed most to the advancement of AFROTC a special commendation.

As a member of the 166 unit National Arnold Air Society the members of the Maryland company wear blue and gold aiguillettes.

Pershing Rifles

Company Commander .....Ronald Ellis
Executive Officer .....Richard Morgan
Trick Drill Officer .....John Rippingale
Adjutant .....Richard Eastlack
Public Information Officer—
Charles Knight
First Sergeant .....Richard Tillman
Faculty Advisor .....Capt. George Ford

The National Society of Pershing Rifles is the foremost honorary military fraternity for basic cadets in the United States. Founded in 1894 by the late General of the Armies, John J. Pershing, Pershing Rifles is now established at 130 colleges and universities.

Pershing Rifles is open to any Freshman or Sophomore basic cadet who shows the desired qualities of leadership and interest.

The organization is dedicated to encourage, preserve, and develop the highest ideals of military proficiency, to instill military discipline and a high sense of honor, and to develop cadet officers to instruct and train the Corps of Cadets.

Maryland's Pershing Rifles unit is made up of a Color Guard, trick drill team, and a precision marching unit. As the most militarily excellent group on the campus the PR's give precision and trick rifle drill demonstrations, engage in local, state, and national competitions, supply the official University Color Guard, serve as honor guard at university ceremonies, and provide escorts for the Homecoming Queen and her court, and the May Queen.

Distinguished by their blue and white aiguillettes, blue scarves, white belts and gloves, Pershing Rifles members drill during the regularly scheduled drill periods on Tuesday and Thursday.

Vandenberg Guard

Commanding Officer is selected at the beginning of the fall semester.
Faculty Advisor .....Maj. David Ambrose

Vandenberg Guard is a precision sabre drill unit composed of volunteer basic cadets. Members drill a maximum of four hours weekly to achieve a desired goal. Equipped with sabres, the organization performs at Military Day and other military functions.

Originated at the University of Maryland in 1955, the Vandenberg Guard was granted a signed charter by Mrs. Hoyt S. Vandenberg, widow of the late General Vandenberg.

Angel Flight

Commander .....Carol Isaacson
Vice-President .....Sani Stack
Secretary .....Norma Berger
Faculty Advisor.....First Lt. Mary Messinger

The Angel Flight is a group of coeds elected by the members of each AFROTC squadron and the Pershing Rifles company to represent them in all AFROTC functions. It is the Angel Flight's purpose to boost the esprit de corps, serve as hostesses for visiting dignitaries, co-sponsor the Military Ball in conjunction with the Arnold Air Society, and help the cadets and Air Science department in any activity.

The "Angels" can be identified at military functions by their blue and gold caps and capes.

AFROTC Band

Faculty Advisor .....Capt. Peter Hamel

The Air Force Reserve Officers' Training Corps Band is composed of AFROTC cadets and is open to all freshman and sophomore cadets who play a musical instrument. Wearing red and white aiguillettes the band provides music for military drills, parades, and formations such as Military Day.

The band's uniforms and instruments are furnished by the Federal Government.

• SORORITIES

Panhellenic Council

Panhellenic Council President—
Margaret Gates

Panhellenic Council Rush Chairman—
Nancy Peckham

Panhellenic Council is the advisory and governing body for the 16 national sororities at the University of Maryland. Panhel strives to promote close inter-sorority relations and to maintain high scholastic and social standards. The Council formulates and enforces rules governing rushing, pledging, and initiation.

Sorority rushing begins on September 29. Rushees will be conducted to Open House Teas at all sorority houses, followed by invitational parties in the two weeks following. After pledging, the new pledges will be further oriented into the sorority system. When they have met the requirements of the sorority and the University, they may be initiated.

Panhellenic Council sponsors the annual Pledge Dance, given every Fall in honor of the pledges; the Panhel Car Wash in the Spring, for Campus Chest; and an Easter Egg roll for orphans. Soon after pledging in the Fall, Panhel sponsors a weekend camping trip to acquaint the new pledges with the campus and its opportunities and activities.

Interfraternity Council

Interfraternity Council President—
Phil Beard

Interfraternity Council Rush Chairman—
Bob Ratliff

On the University of Maryland campus there are 24 national fraternities. Through the Interfraternity Council they are banded together to promote and maintain the fraternity system. The Council co-ordinates fraternity activities and maintains friendly relations between the groups. It also organizes and supervises fraternity rushing.

Fraternity rushing this fall starts on September 26. The IFC rush chairman is in charge of co-ordinating all rush functions. Rush Week will start with a series of Open House Rotary Dances, followed later in the week and on the weekend with invitational parties. Invitations to pledge (called bids) will be out early the following week. If you haven't registered for rushing before you come to school, you may do so at registration.

The Interfraternity Council sponsors the fraternity athletic program which runs throughout the year, the Interfraternity Ball, Greek Week held in the Spring, and Help Week, when pledges from all fraternities work together on a worthwhile project.

Football

The burden of proof will be on football coach Tommy Mont as he tries to rebound his club from its disastrous 2-7-1 record compiled during his first season as coach in 1956.

It's no secret that Terrapin fans are used to a winner and will not tolerate a loser. Tommy Mont was a victim of circumstances—much more than his share and virtually all of it bad. The power-packed club he hoped would carry him through the 1956 season saw its ranks almost depleted before the opening game. A wave of strange jinxes and injuries proved too much. All Tommy could do was to hang on and pray. And that he did.

Now, with vengeance in his mind and another team, loaded at almost every position, Mont is looking forward to a season to make all Terrapin fans proud—and a possible Orange Bowl bid.

Gone are Co-Captains Mike Sandusky and Jack Davis, the meat of the forward wall. Gone is Tom Selep, a bruising fullback when he is well, and gone are many top line reserves. But Mont isn't fretting. He has Gene Alderton, All-ACC center, as a nucleus for his line. Joe Lazzarino, 270 pound tackle, returns to action after a year's layoff and Phil Perlo is back in school after missing last season because of illness.

No, Mont isn't fretting too much. He has an experienced backfield led by Howie Dare, a sturdy speed demon with the cunning of a fox and the gait of an antelope. John McVicker, barrel-legged sprinter and veteran Healey are also back.

And the talent doesn't end there. Mont is inheriting a flock of talent from last year's freshman club which turned in a good season.

Maryland will be shooting the works and doesn't care how much chaos will be created. This is Mont's year of destiny and he must make good. The home schedule is an attractive one, highlighted by the appearance of Tennessee. An interesting season seems in store and it can't get here soon enough for Tommy Mont.

Swimming

Coach Bill Campbell's swimmers turned in a respectable showing in their first season of competition and gave every indication of improvement for the coming campaigns.

With George Lucey, great middle distance performer as a nucleus, Campbell figures to have little difficulty in rounding up a good squad. He even envisions a conference title and next season would not be too soon.

Soccer

One of the most successful of all sports is soccer, a sport in which Maryland bows to no team. The Terps, perennial ACC champions, have been dominate power for many years and Coach Doyle Royal seems content with his material.

And while many of us are prone to overlook soccer in favor of football, the case is not so here where excitment runs high, hard and spirited.

Golf

Golf has been slow climbing at the University but steady gains have been encouraging to Coach Frank Cronin. The ACC, which has given pro golfdom some of its finest new stars, still is a bit tough for the Terps to match evenly, particularly with the strange weather conditions which always strike in the spring.

But the new indoor driving range helped to solve that problem and Cronin sees good times ahead with constant practice.

Basketball

The ACC suddenly has seen the collapse of its perennial "big four" power with the emergence of Maryland as Dixie's newest basketball giant. Last year's club, expected to go nowhere, turned in one of its finest seasons in history before a thrashing in the conference championship ended its dreams.

Coach Bud Millikan never has had a losing club here and the prospects are that he won't for years to come. His entire club remains intact with the exception of Bob O'Brien, the brilliant outside shooter who has graduated.

From the Freshmen Squad, best in the University's history, comes more height than any time since Maryland has been fielding the league's teams. It is the first season in which Maryland will be able to match the league's elite on even terms.

Johnny Nacincik, a defensive wizard, and Nick Davis, a slick courtman, will carry the lion's share for Millikan next season with Al Bunge, 6-foot-8, a freshman, likely to make his presence felt.

While the title is still a bit out of reach, Millikan is not discounting his club's chances of taking all the marbles. He can cite his team's performance against North Carolina in which the Tar Heels were extended to a double overtime before the Terrapins wilted.

A couple of performances like that this season and Maryland could cop the title. And Carolina without All-everything Len Rosenbluth might prove a little more vulnerable—enough for Maryland to spring a surprise.

It looks like Cole Field House will be filled on more than one occasion this season, possibly because of the inviting schedule or possibly because it will be the home court of a champion.

Baseball

Baseball is not one of Maryland's successful spring sports but veteran coach Burt Shipley, starting his 35th season as the Terrapins' pilot, always seems to come up with a respectable one.

In the last two years, Shipley has had little to rave about and even the weather has been a thorn in his side. Rain, wet grounds and generally cold weather usually puts Maryland far behind the other ACC clubs in practice and the Terps are below par when the season starts.

Signs of the future, however, seem to indicate that the Terps will be fielding more formidable clubs, as the freshman teams continue to get stronger and the slick new stadium, Shipley Field, adds more of an incentive to undecided prospects from the various high schools.

While a .500 season is considered a good one here, it is to be pointed out the ACC is one of the better baseball conferences in the nation and that baseball at Maryland is a second-rater to lacrosse and track.

Lacrosse

While comparatively unknown in many parts of the country, Lacrosse has catapulted into one of Maryland's most successful spring sports as well as its most popular.

Co-Coaches Jack Faber and Al Heagy have guided their charges to two consecutive National Championships and at the time of this writing were on their way to an unprecedented third.

The Terrapins always contribute heavily to the All-American squad and to the Southern team for its annual battle with the North. Navy and Johns Hopkins are the traditional rivals and crowds of more than 10,000 are not uncommon.

Prior to this past season Maryland had rolled to 23 straight victories before being halted by the Mt. Washington Club of Baltimore, which is composed primarily of ex-Maryland All-Americans.

Many fans in these parts are not familiar with Lacrosse but one game of the football-basketball-hockey blend is enough to make them life-long rooters.

Track

Another area in which Maryland excels is track and a flock of ACC championships in recent years is conclusive proof. The Terps showed plenty of power in annexing this season's indoor title and seemed ready for a second straight crown at this writing.

Coach Jim Kehoe has plenty of depth and has come up with a host of stellar performers in the middle distance events where the Terps break records as if it were a daily routine.

The cindermen have roared over most of their foes in dual meets and have barely been pushed. One reason for this over-abundance of power is the development of strong field stars who can turn the tide of a meet.

Kehoe has no complaints concerning his club in the coming seasons as he always seems to have plenty of material on hand and the coming year seems to fit into the pattern.

Intramurals

You know, going to college isn't all work and no play. Athletic teams representing the University of Maryland have done extremely well in the past few years. However, a major portion of the students here at Terpville don't have the ability or time to participate in varsity or junior varsity competition.

At the University there is an added outlet for emotions in the athletic field; we call it intramurals. Don't let the word throw you. It merely means within the limits or confines of the University. Intramurals are for students like you and me, who really want to play ball, but aren't able or don't care to play on a varsity squad.

Our system is an excellent one. It is open to all undergraduate students, male and female; of course, no varsity members are allowed to participate.

The intramurals system operates throughout the entire year. The fall sports include touch football, cross-country, open track and soccer—these being team endeavors. Horseshoes and tennis are available for students who wish to participate on an individual basis.

When Old Man Winter visits he introduces the sports of boxing, wrestling, bowling, badminton, volleyball, basketball, and weightlifting. In the spring the men on campus can play softball, golf, or tennis.

Participation in the men's intramurals has been excellent in the fraternity leagues, but the independent students just don't seem to have enough interest in the program. When you enter the university, you are an independent; a great majority of the male students stay independents during their undergraduate years.

This year Jim Kehoe, Intramural Director, is hoping for a better showing from the non-fraternity men on campus. It's simple to enter in any of the various programs throughout the school year. You merely have to see your dormitory proctor or take a short walk to Mr. Kehoe's office in the Armory to find out how to enter. You are the ones on whom he is going to depend this coming year.

The women at the university are not left out of the program. Their intramural recreation is sponsored and supervised by the Women's Recreation Association. The program is open to all women, whether they wish to enter with their sorority, dormitory or as an individual, if interested just contact your house mother.

In the fall bowling, basketball, volleyball, badminton and swimming are offered for all who are interested. In the spring the girls open up on softball or tennis.

In the past year or so there has been started a series of interest groups. These associations are composed of women students who are interested in sports other than those offered in the program. Some of these sports are fencing, hockey, and rifle-shooting.

It has been made as easy as possible for you to join. So now it is up to you incoming freshmen. Take advantage of the offer, and enjoy yourself with your friends and acquaintances. In the past the fraternities have dominated the scene, but, with your help, the independents can make a fine showing.

• CHEERING SECTION

Cheerleaders

"Go—team—go!" Catchy cheers led by agile cheerleaders stimulate an eager crowd to urge its team to victory.

It looks simple but hours of hard work are behind the limber movements and precision timing of the cheerleaders. These spirited figures, in the red and white uniforms, are a familiar sight at pep rallies and all sports events. Tryouts, held in the fall, are open to all students who maintain a 2.0 average.

GIMEE—GIMEE

LONG CHEER—SHORT CHEER

(leader) Give me a long cheer,

(stands) Yeaaa . . .

(leader) Give me a short cheer,

(stands) Yea!

(leader) Give me a silent cheer.

(stands, silence)

Student Activities Council

Each year SAC and the cheerleaders sponsor a cheer contest so that school cheers will remain fresh and lively.

SAC is the nickname given to the organization which promotes pep and school spirit on our campus. This group sponsors pep rallies, the card section, away weekends for football and the other sports, and the two Terrapins seen romping on the football field during the games. SAC formulates plans by which the student might become more interested in his college life.

Student representatives from sororities, fraternities, dorms, campus organizations and independent groups attend these meetings where "action at Maryland" is their motto!

Victory Song

Maryland, we're all behind you,
Wave high the Black and Gold,
For there is nothing half so glorious
As to see our team victorious.
We've got the team, boys,
We've got the steam, boys
So keep on fighting, don't give in!
M-A-R-Y-L-A-N-D (yell)
Maryland will win!
